Mèzè boards

BOARDS

Boards are essential pieces in the kitchen or in the table. The Mèzè boards are perfect for preparing or serving food. They are available in wood, slate or cork.

MATERIALS

MÈZÈ products are shaped from traditional materials such as stone, wood, ceramics, glass, metal, natural fibers or cork resulting in contemporary objects, made by the hands of experienced and reliable designers. They respect these materials and create functional pieces either for our everyday life or for special occasions.

The various types of MÈZÈ pans and pots produced in enameled cast iron, an ancient technique that provides for the best food, allow different types of cooking. In complement to these products there are also basic accessories for the kitchen, such as food storage containers, bowls, boards, Mediterranean-inspired textiles and other specific accessories typical of this region, known around the world for its organic and natural food.

MEDITERRANEAN

The Mediterranean gathers a large group of countries facing a big sea that unites them all. There are several geographical, cultural and religious differences amongst these countries but there are also many common elements.

The Mediterranean has a pleasant climate; it is a place of sun and light, where earth tones predominate, as well as some green vegetation. Its climate and proximity to the sea generates a number of common products that are consumed not only in these countries but also around the world. The taste for good food is a fundamental characteristic of the Mediterranean people.

On the other hand, the climate has also a strong influence on the way the Mediterranean people behave and the kind of relationships they establish between themselves. They possess a natural positivity, a lust for life and a common joyfulness. This type of character is closely linked to the way they eat, to what they eat, to the way they cook and to their concept of sharing a meal. The family structure is the basis of the Mediterranean people but they also love to live close to the community.
